U. S. CONCERNED OVER FATE OF MISSING ACES

Hopes to Wipe Out Ill-feeling of French by Finding Airmen Alive

PRESS REPORTS HARMFUL Emotional Outbursts Caused by Charge of Withholding Weather Forecast

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1927 by Post Pub. Co.)
Washington—Although the exploit of a few aviators in trying to fly across the Atlantic is something which ordinarily would give the American government no concern, there is an intense hope here amounting to a fervent wish that the French fliers will be found alive and that their flight will have proved a success.

The unfortunate impression made in Paris by press reports there about the withholding of weather advice from Washington has hardly been erased by the explanations and denials. It is realized that the French press permitted the masses to get the idea of American plotting to prevent the Frenchmen from taking off ahead of the Americans. The weather bureau sent out its weather reports just the same but static prevented their reception in Paris. Other parts of the world received the weather bureau's reports but facts like these coming in belated explanations did not catch up with the emotional outbursts that preceded.

FLIERS GOOD SPORTS
The regrettable part of the episode is that any part of the French people should consider Americans such sportsmen as to attempt by deception to prevent the French fliers from getting started. The element of sportsmanship has been particularly emphasized by American aviators in all their relations with foreign fliers. As for the French attitude, a good many American athletes brought back the unpleasant impressions made on them at the last Olympic games when the French spectators jeered American performances.

If it were an athletic contest or even an aviation race under ordinary circumstances, there would be little disposition here to pay any attention to the reports of how Frenchmen accused America of cheating. The weather reports, but coming at a time when anti-American feeling in France is supposed to be at its height in connection with the request of the United States in recent years that payments be made on war debts, there is naturally a sensitiveness here about anything that might come up to mar the effort at better relations.

NAVY CONTINUES HUNT
So the American navy and coast guard is bending every effort to find the missing fliers, in fact a determined search is being made in the hope that a rescue may be effected by weathering "thus offsetting if possible, any impressions that America did not wish the Frenchmen to win.

Also Ambassador Herrick's cablegram urging that the American contestants withhold their start at this time has been communicated to the various fliers, but the rivalry among them is so great that governmental influence will probably not avail. Storms thus far have delayed the starts and the hope is that the French fliers may yet be found so that there may be no question about the glory of their achievement ahead of all others.

"No God" Says Mrs. Snyder But Gray Reads His Bible

New York — (AP)—The sentence of death hanging over the heads of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, who have been found guilty of the murder of her husband, was read today. Gray, perusing his Bible in jail in Long Island City, sees himself "one of the best examples of what whisky, lust and sin will ultimately lead one into." He is described as resigned to his doom.

Mrs. Snyder, the Queens Village housewife, sees herself a victim of injustice, and is prepared to fight against the death sentence.

Justice Townsend Scudder, who imposed the sentence on Mrs. Snyder and Gray Saturday was quoted by the New York American as opposed to the death penalty in general.

Gray's picture of himself as a "best example" was sketched in a note he addressed to "the public." The note said:

OTHER PLANES AGAIN DELAY PARIS JOURNEY

Other New Foundland Residents Report Plane of Missing Frenchmen

Roosevelt Field, N. Y. — (AP)—The American three-motored Fokker airplane to be used by Commander Richard E. Byrd, in a trans-Atlantic flight attempt, was formally accepted Saturday by the Trans-Oceanic Co., after it had successfully completed final tests.

New York — (AP)—A tri-cornered air race to Paris loomed as a greater possibility Saturday as adverse weather conditions caused further postponement in the take off of the two foremost contenders. The weather bureau's dictum that a squally condition existed beyond mid-ocean caused Clarence Chamberlin and Lloyd Bertaud to postpone their flight, set for early Saturday. Meanwhile Commander Richard E. Byrd seemed to be rushing his plans for a hop-off. Capt. Charles Lindbergh, spectacular Lochinvar out of the west is "rarin' to go" and is awaiting better weather.

Byrd, with a bandaged arm, carried since the Fokker monoplane America crashed in a test flight a month ago, had not been expected to hop off for several days at least. But he made arrangements for the sling to be removed from his injured limb Saturday. There came news too that the America would be turned over Saturday to the American Trans-Oceanic company back of the flight, and that Byrd's pilot would be announced.

TO SUPPLANT PILOT

Bert Acosta, it was generally believed would supplant the injured Floyd Bennett as pilot. Lieut. George Noville will be the third member of the Byrd crew.

There were developments, with a weather bureau prediction that a change in weather should not be expected over the weekend, led to the opinion Byrd might catch up with Lindbergh and the Chamberlin-Bertaud combination in preparations.

There was a feeling that Lindbergh, the 25-year-old debonair flier from the Missouri National guard might do the unexpected. Stirring aviation circles Thursday by landing here from San Diego, Calif., in two hops and record time, he had had his single seater monoplane, the Spirit of St. Louis, groomed to continue eastward without notice.

REPORT SEEING PLANE

Harbor Grace, N. F. — (AP)—A woman resident of Harbor Grace and two men in Bear Cove, near here, reported Saturday that last Monday they saw an aeroplane passing over the town. The man said it was painted white.

The woman, Mrs. Alice Kelly, who is elderly, said that it was about 10 o'clock Monday morning when she saw the plane. The men, Eben Peddle and his son, asserted that they saw the plane at about the same time. It was going northwest, they added, and watched it until it passed from sight.

Bear Cove is a small fishing village east of Harbor Grace. Peddle and his son came into this town Saturday for the first time this week and related their story.

Earlier in the week several residents of Harbor Grace reported that they had heard the sound of an aeroplane engine between 9 and 10 o'clock Monday morning, but that on account of the dense fog they were unable to see the plane. They led to the theory that the plane might have been that of the missing French airmen, Captain Nungesser and Coll. No other plane was known to have been in this vicinity at the time.

LONDON COPS HUNT FOR IMPORTANT DOCUMENT

London — (AP)—It was generally reported Saturday that the raid on Soviet house in London, headquarters of the Russian trade delegation and Arcos, Ltd., soviet commercial organization, was made to discover whether a certain document of importance to the state, which has been missing for several months, was to be found there.

PLANE IS DAMAGED

Curtis Field, N. Y. — (AP)—Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh's Ryan monoplane suffered a minor casualty Friday as the mail pilot was testing it. In landing the tail skid was broken and he successfully attempted to avoid a group of photographers, snapping his return to earth after a test flight. Repair was said to be a matter of only a few hours.

Borden Children Under Police Guard In Chicago

Chicago — (AP)—The 15-month-old and the 5-year-old stepsons of John Borden, Chicago's "millionaire explorer," are under the close guard of private detectives because of fear of kidnappers. The Herald-Examiner said Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Borden at present are with the Borden field museum Arctic expedition, last reported near the western coast of Alaska.

Placing of guards over the Borden children was seen by Chicago police as another evidence that wealthy Chicago families had taken seriously the revelations in the thwarted million dollar ransom plot which had the young children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schuyler of Lake Forest, as their intended victims.

The elaborate precautions which the newspaper said had been taken for the protection of the Borden children, however, were the first that had been reported on Chicago's "gold coast."

Whether ransom demands had been made on the Borden had not been revealed, said the newspaper account.

DISTRICT ATTORNEYS ASK SWIFT JUSTICE FOR LAW VIOLATORS

Green Bay — (AP)—Reconciliation of the state statutes to eliminate obsolete and unnecessary laws, and revision of criminal procedure to obtain quicker justice for the offender were the objects of resolutions adopted Friday afternoon at the closing session of the Wisconsin District Attorneys' association convention here. COURT GRANTS WRIT TO CRANDON LAWYERS

Supreme Tribunal Will Decide Jurisdiction in County Board Case

Madison — (AP)—The state supreme court Saturday allowed a writ to Crandon attorneys under which records of the injunction proceedings, restraining a meeting of the Forest-co. board, will have to be brought to Madison for review on the question of jurisdiction by the high bench.

Judge Quinlan at Crandon, recently issued a writ to one of the two factions seeking control of the county, which restrained the county board from holding its organization meeting.

The writ was issued on the information that three of the county board members were not legally qualified as such. One was charged with being a defaulter, another was alleged to have been unqualified because election recount proceedings questioning his election were in progress. The third was deputy sheriff of the county. The first is a former county treasurer.

The writ issued Saturday is returnable May 31. It commands that the records of the injunction proceedings be brought before the state supreme court, which will decide whether Judge Quinlan had jurisdiction to issue the restraining order.

New Orleans — (AP)—Waters from the Bayou Des Glaives crevasses were hourly adding to the total square miles of submerged lands in Louisiana Saturday, engulfing the famous "sugar bowl" and the Evangeline country in their seaward march. The breaks were 150 miles from New Orleans, on the west side of the Atchafalaya river.

Small boats, flying low over the country behind the crevasses said the waters would reach Melville, within 36 hours, but by that time few people would remain in the territory. The aviator said the water was moving swiftly.

Small guardsmen in charge of rescue work declared that they believed no lives would be lost.

New Orleans continued to be regarded as safe. The situation in Mississippi gradually was improving. More than 3,000 refugees returned to their homes.

MUDDY TRACK BUT FINE DAY FOR KENTUCKY DERBY

Louisville, Ky. — (AP)—A muddy track for the horses and a heavy day for the visitors marked derby day for the fifty-third renewal of Kentucky's turf classic.

Showers softened the course at Churchill Downs and caused the withdrawal of one of the 18 entries. Saxon would not start, his trainer said, because of a slight injury suffered during the trip from New York. Others may be scratched up to 45 minutes before post time.

The Times said Saturday that Rolled Stocking, one of the outstanding candidates for the derby had been sold by J. W. Harris, Midway, Ky., banker, to E. W. Haggerson, oil man and rancher at Electric, Texas, for $110,000. Denial of this report was made Friday.

SPENCER ASKS DIVORCE FROM BRITISH WIFE

Titled Wife Doesn't Want Divorce Action Tried in Appleton Court

An international divorce suit filed in municipal court in Oshkosh may not be tried here as a result of an effort by Mrs. Isabella Beattie Spencer to secure a change of venue from Appleton to New York city in the divorce suit filed here by her husband, Harold Sherwood Spencer, son of the late Judge Albert M. Spencer of municipal court. Spencer filed his suit here about ten days ago, charging cruel and inhuman treatment and misconduct. A certain William MacQueen of New York is named in the complaint.

Mrs. Spencer filed a motion in the New York supreme court for an injunction to restrain her husband from prosecuting the suit in Appleton on the ground that Captain and Mrs. Spencer have been residents of New York state since November of 1924. Argument on the motion was set for Monday.

MARRIED IN 1918
Captain Spencer and Miss Beattie were married in London, Eng., on April 18, 1918. Mrs. Spencer is the daughter of Sir James and Lady Beattie of St. Andrews, Scotland and London.

Spencer's specific charge of misconduct against his wife depends on alleged occurrence in New York in April of 1927. He said in his complaint that he left the United States in December, 1926, to travel in Europe for a corporation employing him and before he left he rented an apartment at 41 Fifth-ave, New York, for Mrs. Spencer and she occupied this flat until his return four months later. He said he returned to New York sooner than he had expected and when he went to the apartment he found his wife living there with Mac Queen.

Spencer said his wife and her companion endeavored to explain their presence together and that she admitted Mac Queen had occupied a room in their apartment for several days prior to Spencer's return from Europe.

The complaint charged his wife with other "actions unbecoming a married woman."

SENIOR CLASS PLAY TO RADIATE SPIRIT OF AMERICAN YOUTH

Story Centers About Riggs Shoe Store in Typical Small Town

"The Four-Flusher," by Caesar Dunn, senior class play at Appleton high school, to be presented at Fischer's Appleton theater, May 24, will radiate the spirit of American youth. Miss Ruth McKinnon, director of the play, said, Frank Murphy and Miss Eunice Segal will play the leading roles. Both have had experience in amateur dramatics and have worked with Miss McKinnon in former high school plays.

The story centers chiefly in the Riggs shoe store and Andy Whitacker, the leading character, is a shoe clerk in this small town store. "But he has big ideas hidden away in his heart," the leading girl, Jerry Dean, holds away behind the cash register in the same shoe store. She plays the typical American girl part.

Andy's desire to win his sweetheart is the basis of the delightful comedy. When he sees he has the competition of money, he decides to become a four-flusher and show the rival how things are really done. An amusing plot results from this. There is an interesting love plot and also the one in which Andy realizes his great ambitions. The close of the play is full of surprises, the coach said.

Miss Segal was cast in the junior class play "Seven Chances" last year. She won second place in the dramatic contest in 1925 and first place in 1927. She also represented the high school in the Fox River Valley district contest this year.

Teachers Retirement Fund Wiped Out When Daggett Measure Is Adopted

Madison (AP)—Working day and night throughout the week in an effort to dispose of drawn out calendars, Wisconsin's legislature enacted upon numerous important measures.

Major tax bills occupied much of the time spent in discussion on the floors of both houses, the senate finally passing the Daggett bill virtually abolishing the teachers' retirement fund through repeal of the surtax on incomes over $5,000, while the assembly killed the Ingalls personal property tax repeal measure.

The lower house laid a heavy hand on many proposals, including a theatre tax bill, a bill to allow women to work nights in country stores and a measure providing for a state bonding fund. Senate sessions were frequently interspersed with attempts to abolish the present highway commission.

SYD CHAPLIN IN "THE BETTER OLE" TO BE SHOWN FOR THREE DAYS STARTING MONDAY AT FISCHER'S APPLETON THEATRE.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

Yesterday's question was: Who was Cavendish?

The answer is: Cavendish was the pseudonym under which Henry Jones, England's most celebrated writer on card games, was known. He was born in London, November 2, 1831, and lived until about seventy years of age. While Whist was popular his books had an enormous sale in all parts of the world.

One of the questions most frequently asked concerning the scoring of the game is, how to score in the case of a revoke. I have before me a letter which the writer states that, in her favor, that her opponents obtained a Spade contract and made six Spades, but revoked. She claimed that the two tricks penalty for the revoke would give her nine points each and game; the opponents claimed that they could go game as they had four odd tricks left after paying the penalty.

Jeweler Called Back from Wedding Trip When Store Is Robbed

Special to Post-Crescent.

Hilbert—Three robberies occurred here this week and no clues to the thieves have been found, it was reported. The jewelry store owned by Edward J. McGraw was entered Thursday night and fountain pens, watches, silverware, chains, necklaces, and various other articles were taken.

Mr. McGraw was married Tuesday, and had left for a wedding trip. The store was closed during his absence, but his brother-in-law, Norman Vollmer, was attending to the furnace.

When Mr. Vollmer went to the store Friday morning he found the show cases and window displays ransacked, and things thrown about the store.

The proprietor was telegraphed and returned Friday night. His loss had not been estimated Saturday morning. The robbers entered through an east window.

One hundred fifty pounds of coffee and 100 pounds of sugar were taken from the Raddatz Horneck warehouse sometime Tuesday. The discovery was made Wednesday.

Chickens were stolen from the houses of Dr. F. Holtz. The number of fowls lost was not reported.

over until next week. The lower house also clinched action taken previously in favoring the "bill of rights for home brewer" when a motion to reconsider the vote by which it was passed was lost.

A move by certain senators to increase legislative pay through the introduction of a bill allowing office space and rent for members caused a furor in the senate after the comparatively harmless appearing bill was found to welcome the addition of beds as office fixtures. It was killed.

PLANTING DELAYED BY COOL, WET WEATHER

Unusually cool and wet weather has delayed planting and farm work in nearly all parts of Wisconsin. The season generally is late in spite of much mild weather early in the year.

Crops, however, have come through the winter with little damage and are entering the growing period with plenty of moisture and the prospect for a good season, according to the Wisconsin Crop and Livestock Reporting Service at Madison.

While new seedlings of clover and alfalfa have winterkilled occasionally, in general they have come through the winter in a very satisfactory manner. The condition of the clovers is estimated at 85 per cent of normal and alfalfa 82 per cent. All tame hay in Wisconsin shows a condition of 85 per cent of normal as compared with about 85 per cent for the United States as a whole.

FARMERS AWARDED VERDICT BY JURY IN CATTLE SUIT

Bowermans Given $5,000
Judgment from Wisconsin
Livestock Assn.

A special verdict containing 21 questions was answered in favor of the defendant late Thursday night by a municipal court jury which heard the suit of the Wisconsin Livestock association against E. R. Bowerman and his son Roy. The jury also awarded the defendants damages of $5,000 on their counterclaim against the live stock association.

The trial has been in progress before Judge Fred Heinemann in municipal court for about ten days. Motions for judgment on the verdict and for judgment notwithstanding the verdict will be heard by the court in the near future.

The Wisconsin Livestock association brought suit against the Bowermans to recover certain cattle which it alleged were illegally held by the defendants and also asked $2,000 damages. The Bowermans filed a counterclaim for $21,669.45, alleging misrepresentation. Later the counterclaim was amended to decrease the claim for damages about $2,000.

The Bowermans contended that the herd was infected with tuberculosis and that they suffered considerable loss in maintaining the cattle. The jury in the special verdict, declared the livestock association was not legally entitled to the cattle in question and they were not illegally detained by the defendants. The jurors also decided the plaintiff did not have reasonable grounds for knowing that the herd was infected with tuberculosis when it was furnished to the Bowermans. All the other questions, however, were answered in favor of the defendant and the final question fixed the damages at $5,000.

Diva Claims Platonic Alimony In Queer Suit

BY GENE COHN
New York—"Platonic alimony." No wedlock. No divorce. No breach of promise. And yet an avowed gratuity of $48,000 a year for the remainder of a lifetime that has reached only its 48th milestone.

This is the unprecedented claim that has risen to befuddle New York courts and lawyers as the result of the strange agreement which Frieda Hempel, the buxom and brilliant diva, alleges she had with August Heckscher, 78, multi-millionaire philanthropist. The agreement came into being, one is told, about the time the operatic star was getting her Paris divorce from William B. Kahn, New York broker. They were abroad at the same time. The world had been led to believe she would wed Heckscher. But she didn't.

They returned to America—Heckscher to go quietly to his mansion at Great Neck, L. I., to study the problems of Manhattan's poor and to aid the city in its effort to clean up the East Side tenements.

Frieda to settle down quietly in a Central Park apartment which her former husband had given her when he checked out to take bachelor quarters in a New York hotel.

ALL VERY FRIENDLY
They were still friendly, the world heard. In fact it had all been very friendly.

There had been, for instance, a dinner given by Kahn before he went to Paris to win a separation, and Heckscher had been an invited guest. Kahn had made the nicest of gestures, insisting that incompatibility had been the only reason for divorce and that "no man had come between them."

Yet, say Frieda's lawyers, Heckscher agreed to pay the great coloratura $48,000 a year. They acknowledge receipt of one $12,000 installment. Now they are suing for the rest.

A sort of "platonic alimony." If you will. Which is something quite new under the sun.

Now a man who, at 78, finds his name on the directorate of two dozen large corporations and who is listed either as president or vice-president of a dozen more; who has built a gilt-top skyscraper memorial and doled out millions for the poor, is likely to be rather well informed about the serious obligations of a contract.

Hence the perplexity over this intriguing arrangement.

THEIR FETCHING CAREERS

Perhaps never have two more interesting careers come to tangle in or out of romance.

Heckscher was son of a German prime minister, born in Hamburg. When his father died he came to America, at the age of 19, and went into the Pennsylvania coal mines. A cousin was in charge of a mine and when this relative became ill the new comer stepped into his place to find himself faced with the famous "Mollie Maguire" labor troubles.

After learning considerable about mining he organized a corporation and began running a few of his own. Meantime he had a pretty romance with an ironmaster's daughter, ending in marriage.

There were two children: Antoinette, who married the Hon. Oliver Brett, of London, and G. Maurice, whose wife the former Louise Vanderhoe, has just divorced him in Europe after marital troubles in which bodyguards, police and private detectives played a part. It had been said the Heckscher, Jr., was in love with Luelia Gear, the comely musical star, and that they intended to marry.

"The suit has nothing to do with a promise of marriage," the lawyers say.

They decline to say just what manner of contract it was that at $48,000 a year would have netted Frieda Hempel a million in 20 more years.

Of Luelia it is said that at a dinner, she and Frieda clinked glasses, toasting each other as future "mother and daughter."

To return to Heckscher: he reached his mid-fifties very rich and intent upon retiring. His health menaced by gout, he went in for health fads. It was reported he fell out of a bathtub and injured himself while trying some new exercise stunt.

Instead of retiring, he went variously into big real estate, railroad and manufacturing deals.

HOW HEMPEL WON FAME
Mme. Hempel also comes from Germany. She was one of 10 children and born near Leipzig. Her parents, noting her singing voice, determined to give her every chance. She was sent to Berlin after being acclaimed in her home town, and at 18 was making her appearance in opera.

Her career in America has been spectacular. For years she has been a favorite of the Metropolitan and the concert stage. She met Heckscher several years ago. He had been a patron of music and the arts.

Often, it is said, she had sung for him—and so the story went—there started a romance of December and

PHOTOGRAPHERS TO CONVENE AT RACINE

Four Appleton Portrait Artists
Expect to Attend State
Meeting

Four Appleton photographers expect to attend the annual convention of the Wisconsin Photographer's association in Racine on May 17, 18 and 19. A program of demonstration business lectures and entertainment has been arranged, according to G. A. Malmie, president. Those from Appleton who expect to attend are H. W. Donner, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Froehlich, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Harwood and J. Sykes.

George C. Blakler, staff photographer of the Yerkes observatory at the University of Chicago, who spent 25 years at the Lake Geneva observatory, will speak on Photography of the Heavens. William Towles, Washington, D. C., prominent portrait photographer will be one of the first day's program. He is one of the two men selected to judge the exhibits. A silver cup is to be awarded to the photographer whose picture is declared the best in the exhibit. The prize winner will be exhibited in the state gallery.

BUILDING PERMITS

Two building permits, authorizing construction estimated at $120 were issued Saturday by the building inspector. They were given as follows: John Gehl 1320 1/2-st., garage; August Arndt, 216 Lawrence-st., addition to garage.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR OPEECHEE-ST SEWER

Plans for a sewer on Opeechee-st. were completed this week by the city engineer's office and the contract was awarded to Geiger and Fredrick Construction company by the board of public works. Geiger's bid was $12,500. The Opeechee-st. sewer is approximately 175 feet long. Excavating will be started Monday.

Under the rules of the association but one picture is added to the group each year.

Foreign photographic methods will be explained by Felix Schantz. More than 30 firms have engaged space for the exhibition of manufacturers' and dealers' equipment and material.

Because the national convention is being held in New York this year, photographers from northern Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Michigan have been invited to attend the Racine gathering.

BALLARD SAYS STATE OWNS CAFE EQUIPMENT

Madison — (P)—Inventory is being taken of the equipment and supplies of the state Capitol cafe, located in the basement of the building, and operated by the Capitol Mutual club, an organization of state house employees.

C. B. Ballard, superintendent of public property declared that unless the operators of the cafe could show a bill of sale or receipt for the equipment of the cafe it would be considered state property, inasmuch as the cafe was originally equipped by the state.

Kitchen utensils, dining room tables, chairs, silverware and dishes were put in the cafe in 1916 by the state, Mr. Ballard said.

He declared that the operators of the lunching place had paid no rent on the basement until 1922, when the Mutual club began operating the place. The rent was then made $200 per month and this has been paid since that time, although, except for the year 1923 no part of the cafe was ever granted.

The club officers are claiming title to the kitchen and dining room equipment, Mr. Ballard said, and the inventory is being taken to find if ownership of the property can be determined.

Michael Wazner, Sr. returned Friday from a visit with relatives in Omaha, Neb. His daughter, Mrs. Claude McDonald of Omaha, returned with him for a visit.

REYNOLDS GIVES "TIPS" TO COUNTY PROSECUTORS

Green Bay — (P)—John W. Reynolds, attorney general of the state of Wisconsin, suggested a set of rules for ascribing district attorneys at the annual convention of attorneys here Friday. They were in part:

"Bear in mind the accused is entitled to a speedy public trial and that you have no right to wring from him a confession in your private office.

"Give the people the best in you and don't permit the counsel of the accused to bluff you in the performance of your duties.

"Read the Bible, Lincoln's Gettysburg address and profit mightily by both.

"Master your work, and although you will be pitted against the ablest criminal lawyers in the state, ride the range fearlessly and unafraid."

"Y" OFFICERS MAY GO TO NATIONAL MEETING

Plans for sending a delegation of Appleton Y. M. C. A. officials to the national employed officers convention of the association at Chicago next week will be made at a meeting of the board of directors of the local association at 730 Saturday evening. Other important business matters to be considered are final reports on the $35,000 "Finish the Job" campaign of the association, and plans for the election of new directors.

NEW CONSERVATION SYSTEM

The bill sponsored by the Izaak Walton league for the reorganization of Wisconsin's conservation system has passed the senate with but two opposing votes and awaits the approval and signature of the governor. It substitutes for the present one-man commission, with limited powers, a conservation board of six unpaid members which has in conjunction with the governor extensive authority in the protection and propagation of fish, game and forests. The two members of the senate who voted against it criticized the measure principally on the ground that it was advocated by the Izaak Walton league, asserting that most of the game and fish hogs and law violators were members of this organization and that the bill is an attempt to regulate fishing and hunting for sportsmen only. Regardless of whether this is true or not, there is no force to the criticism. There are hypocrites in every organization, churches included. The purposes of the guiding element in the Izaak Walton league are the genuine conservation of natural resources, and are altogether commendable.

Everyone who has at heart the conservation of fish, game and forests knows that the present system is poorly adapted to this object, and that it has produced unsatisfactory results. The job of commissioner is about nine-tenths politics. While the board set up under the Izaak Walton league bill is political in the sense that it is appointed by the governor, nevertheless it probably represents the nearest approach to non-political conservation that can be expected. The fact that members of the board serve without pay takes away the chief motive for surrendering it to politics. For competency and integrity it will have to depend upon the wisdom and good faith of the executive in making the appointments. Its duty will be to study the conditions and needs of the state, which when ascertained, can be met by administrative orders. Any conservation agency must have wide latitude of authority to meet emergencies, and to apply remedies to situations as they arise. Biennial sessions of the legislature are too infrequent to handle these problems, and furthermore it seldom handles them on their merits. We think the measure is a step forward in conservation and in the preserving unspoiled of the great outdoors. Certainly it is an experiment worth trying out.

DARROW ON CRIMINALS

Whatever one may think of Clarence Darrow personally, one cannot deny his long acquaintance with criminals and one must concede that if he has formed any general conclusion concerning crime and its cause it is likely that his deduction is correct. His conclusions, as presented recently to Harvard undergraduates, is that ninety per cent of criminals are poor, eighty per cent are uneducated and half are morons.

In this Mr. Darrow agrees substantially with many other noted lawyers, criminologists and social reformers, and we must, perforce, concur in that opinion. Starting with that as a base, we see that we could eliminate at least half the crime by eliminating poverty and illiteracy. The other half of crime, perpetrated by morons whose defect is probably the result of inheritance, is a harder nut to crack and would take longer to remedy.

There is a definite cure for every feature of this crime cause list. The cure for poverty is an improved social system, not necessarily socialism or communism; the cure for illiteracy is better and more thorough education; and the cure for morons is a system of birth control and eugenics. But how far is the world of today willing to go along the road to cure these evils? Not very far, we fear. For instance, in this country, prosperous as it is, we would find few who would consider changing radically the social system or the economic system to eliminate poverty altogether, for the simple reason that they know it cannot be done. Then as to education, where we should keep every person in school until he is eighteen or so and make him get an education whether he wants it or not, we permit him to escape without it. And as to birth control—we can hardly talk about it.

Clearly Mr. Darrow is right, but can Mr. Darrow go further and explain how we can remedy the situation? It is not so much an analysis we need as a prescription for the ill.

OUTLAWING WAR

Much interest has been aroused by a proposal of the French Foreign minister to negotiate a treaty with the United States outlawing war as between these two countries. The suggestion came out of a clear sky, without previous indication that the French had such a plan under advisement. We can see no reason why this government should not enter into such a pledge. It is true that France is more likely to commit offenses against us than we are against France. She has proprietary interests in the New world that might conceivably bring her into conflict with the United States, whereas we have none in Europe or in any other part of the world that would invite aggressiveness. Nevertheless, we do not think that we as a nation have anything to lose by binding ourselves to keep the peace. In any difference of opinion that would arise between the two countries we could not stand to lose by peaceful negotiation, and we are powerful enough to protect ourselves against imposition.

The possibilities of war between France and the United States are exceedingly small, just as they are between the United States and Great Britain. The principal value of a treaty outlawing war such as France proposes would not, in our opinion, lie so much in the security it would afford to the parties themselves as in the example it would set to the rest of the world of the efficacy of such engagements in promoting international peace, and in the challenge it would present to other nations to go and do likewise. If it could have a helpful effect in breaking down the barrier of suspicion and fear that exists throughout Europe, it would be of incalculable benefit.

It has been suggested that such a treaty would be in contravention of the covenant of the League of Nations, in that it would prevent France as signatory from joining in the application of sanctions against a war or threatened war of offense, but a careful examination of the covenant shows that this interpretation is without foundation. In fact, the point is expressly covered by Article 21 which reads that "nothing in this covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of international engagements * * * for securing the maintenance of peace." Finally, the treaty would not necessarily bind this country to unlimited arbitration. It would simply forever outlaw war as between the two countries, and leave them to such peaceful devices as they might find to settle their controversies and to insure justice and fair dealing.

OLD MASTERS

Oh what shall I hang on the chamber walls?
And what shall the pictures be that I hang on the walls?
To adorn the burial house of him I love?

Picture of growing spring and farms and homes. With the Fourth-month sun at sundown, and the gray smoke lucid and bright. With the clouds of the yellow gold of the gorgeous, indolent, sinking sun, burning, expanding the air. With the fresh spring herbage under foot, and the pale green leaves of the trees prolific. In the distance the flowing glaze, the breast of the river, with a wind-chime here and there. With morning hills on the bank, with many a line against the sky, and shadows. And the city at land with dwellings so dense, and smoke of chimneys. And all the scenes of life and the workshops, and the workmen homeward returning. NEVER MIND THE COUGH

My own fool proof cough medicine may not cure many maladies but I do not hesitate to present the recipe with full directions for its use for child or adult to any correspondent who sends a proper request for it and incloses a properly stamped and addressed return envelope to carry the information back. I do this because I know the medicine is fool proof. Even the poorest cavities do much with it, though they have done their damndest on occasions when I have ventured to print the formula. The worst they have ever done was to omit the water, and that gave a weird mess—the short hairs on the back of my neck still crinkle when I recall the comments a Kentucky gentleman made upon the taste and effect of that particular version of the fool proof cough remedy.

Personally I'd prefer to do my own coughing if I had anything to cough about, and I should consider very carefully before prescribing anything to check or to influence coughing if I were attending a patient and had a free hand to do only what I deemed best for the patient. We doctors seldom have such a commission in private practice. In private practice we often prescribe with one eye on the patient's welfare and the other on the traditions, superstitions, folklore or concepts of the family, relatives, neighbors or friends. But here I can cut loose and speak frankly—at least I think I can, for I do not at the moment envisage a single proprietary interest which will resent this bit of truth. However, one never knows in this work where the next sniping will be encountered.

Now here's a typical case. Johnny is a brood of a boy with a natural lazy, school hating, boyish disposition. Johnny has some rather large tonsils, probably also enlarged adenoid body, and no doubt considerable associated or consequent abnormality in the nasal passages. So it is no trick at all for Johnny to trump up a "terrible" cough on every slight cause of provocation. Not that the kid deliberately fakes a cough, but you know, Barkus is willin'. His parents invariably react favorably to Johnny's cough—they become anxious and discuss the dread significance of such a "bad cold" with all the possible results until Johnny just naturally coughs until he is sick. This fits in well with the unwholesome environment and atmosphere, and so the upshot of the thing is that Johnny gets a week or two out of school. Also Johnny gets some more or less harmful "cough medicine"—usually something containing a good dash of narcotic which keeps Johnny kinda dull and dopy and also keeps Johnny's cough going indefinitely.

If you ask me about Johnny's cough I'll tell you to forget it. Johnny coughs "terribly." All right, what if? Coughing doesn't hurt Johnny any, it may even do him good. If Johnny needs treatment for his tonsils or adenoid or rhinitis, why let him have proper treatment, and never mind the cough. What has the cough to do with it? Croupy, brassy, bawling, "terrible!" Aw banana oil. Do you expect the kid to cough pianissimo? Does he close the door and climb the stairs pianissimo? Not if he is a regular kid.

In short, here is my honest advice: Never do anything to check a cough, except under medical care. If you wish to aid or loosen a cough, try old Dr. Brady's fool proof cough remedy.

I am inclosing a pamphlet from Dr. . . . of
No. 10, who offers to cure my skin trouble for $25 (deposited in a bank) and give a money back guarantee. (Miss S. P. C.)

Answer: The Joker in the question "guarantee" is this: No specific time or date is fixed when the bank will give back the money if your skin trouble has not been cured. Some one must have handed your name to the faker as one soft prospect. Once more let me remind you that no doctor can honestly guarantee to cure anything. Only swindlers pretend to guarantee a cure. In this case, the $25 in the bank is a sure thing—anyway don't let the quack doctors' bank get hold of it—and if your family doctor can't take care of your skin trouble ask him to refer you to a reputable skin specialist, or I'll recommend one for you if you wish. What a Chance to Kill Two Birds With One Stone

HASKIN WRITES TODAY

UNCLE SAM'S FILMS

Washington, D. C. — During the season for field work which has just opened and will continue until September, Uncle Sam, as a movie producer, will make twenty new films. In the making of these motion pictures his production company, known as the Office of Motion Pictures of the Department of Agriculture, is sending three crews into the field. They will cover a large part of the United States this year, operating as far west as Utah.

Neither the names nor the subjects of the twenty new pictures will be announced. This, for the reason that if they were made public at this time the Department would be overwhelmed with requests and demands for the films. Experience has taught these men that the more they are known, the more they are requested.

After the field work is over in September the fall and winter months will be devoted to editing, titling, cutting, and assembling the new films, and when they are completed, they will be distributed to the public who will be informed of their nature and given a chance to have them shown in all sections of the United States.

These pictures, along with those produced in years past, are intended primarily to aid in the extension work of the Department of Agriculture and are distributed through the division that handles that and through co-operating state agencies. In addition the films can be borrowed for exhibition purposes by farmers' organizations, schools, colleges, churches, community centers, theaters, or individuals, who are responsible and will give the transportation charges both ways.

Also prints of any of the pictures may be purchased by organizations or individuals under authorization of the Department from a Commercial manager at prices that have been established by competitive bidding. These prices range from $21 to $33 per reel of approximately 1000 feet. Incidentally, it may be said, the Government has been doing a fairly business in selling prints of many of its pictures, a considerable number of them even having been titled in foreign languages and sold abroad.

CONDITIONS GOVERNING PURCHASE

The conditions governing such purchases are that no changes be made in the subject matter of the films without approval from the Department of Agriculture, that credit to the Department be retained, and that no commercial advertising matter be added to or inserted in the films.

Each unit or crew that the Office of Motion Pictures is now sending into the field of a director, a camera man, and a subject matter man, who is usually a scientist familiar with the lesson that the film to be made is expected to teach. The actors are secured in the localities where the scenes are shot. Usually they are amateurs of the purest ray serene. Sometimes the services of semi-professionals are enlisted, and occasionally professionals are engaged for the leads in pictures carrying a story that calls for real acting ability in its delineation.

Six new pictures have been added during the last already long list of that had been produced and catalogued by the Department. One of them tells the story of cooperative marketing in the United States, and is destined to give a good idea of the extent of the movement and of the volume of business that is done by the various marketing organizations.

Two of the new films were produced as educational features for the fight which the Department is waging against the European corn borer.

Another is entitled "Mother Takes A Vacation" and depicts the activities of farm women.

Camps conducted by state extension services in the West. It was photographed in Montana and Idaho. The fifth is somewhat similar in character and is called "The Family Goes To College." It shows the annual farmers' encampment at the Utah Agricultural College.

cultural College, how farmers from all over the States go there for the July short course, and what they do after they get there. The sixth tells the story of the short course for farm boys and girl club members at Washington State College and the University of Idaho, and of the relationship of an agricultural education to practical farming and home-making.

MANY PICTURES AVAILABLE

More than 225 pictures are now listed in the catalogue of the Office of Motion Pictures, and their subject matter ranges from airplane "dusting" and airplane fire patrols to yaukon — which is another name for cassia, a beverage producing plant — and zoology. The growth of the service is shown in the rapid increase in the prints that the office has been called upon to supply. In 1922, 2066 shipments were made from the laboratory, and in 1925, 4276. More than 2,000,000 feet of film are now being circulated from the headquarters in Washington, and approximately an equal quantity is being circulated by co-operating institutions and organizations.

No serious attempt has been made to estimate the size of Uncle Sam's motion picture audience, but obviously it is an immense one. It is equally obvious that it might be much larger but for the fact that the number of prints available for distribution has never been sufficient to supply the demand.

Most popular of the pictures that have been produced is that entitled "Out of the Shadows." It has been shown for five years and is still going strong — a record of which any of the producers out in Hollywood, or anywhere else, would be proud. This film tells the story of the appearance of animal tuberculosis on Henry Benton's farm and its communication to his daughter, Mary, through the milk of an infected cow, of the clean-up of the farm and Benton's acquiring a herd of dairy cattle accredited as free from tuberculosis, of Mary's departure for a sanitarium, and of her return, rested to health, three years later.

Another picture greatly in demand is called "Poor Mrs. Jones." It depicts a farm woman who was unhappy, dissatisfied, and sorry for herself because of the isolation of life. She led a life of a sister in the city who lives in a two-room-and-lit-chicken flat, and after two weeks of that cramped sort of life she is glad to get back to the farm and decides to live happy ever afterward. The picture is designed to teach a lesson in appreciation of the advantages of country life. Its popularity, it has been suggested, may be explained in part by the interest farmers take in seeing that their wives view it and get the lesson.

Some of the pictures, notably those taken in the national parks and forests, are of the rare scenic value and interest. Others of the "Western" rival Hollywood's best with scenes of broncho busting, roping and tramping, and other exhibitions of horsemanship and cowboy prowess. And all of them, be it noted, are primarily of marked educational value.

The Question Box

Q. What is the name of the largest snake and where is it found? L. G.

A. The python is the largest snake in the world. It is found in the East Indies and in the Philippine Islands. Specimens 20 feet long have been seen.

Q. Please tell me the nationality of Jack Sharkey. C. W.

A. Jack Sharkey is a Lithuanian, his real name being Joe Cuskosky.

Q. Why is Poland called a "buffer state"? E. H.

A. Poland is spoken of as a "buffer state" for the same reason that Switzerland is — that is because of its geographical location. A buffer state is one which intervenes geographically between larger states and lessens the danger of rupture from

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Broadway snapshots—the tattered straw hat that lies in a corner of every back stage. There are at least three stage managers who know who slip one on the minutes they start work, come winter or summer. Why? Not one of them would dare attempt to slip a straw bennie on the streets until the official day. But they're always wearing their back stage.

The tiny cluttered waiting room of a producer's office—just moving room enough for six or seven people. But the word has gone out that a new musical show will be put on next spring. And maybe there'll be a spot open for a sister act comes in. Of course they wear curls and those flowing hats that went out of date with the old Gibson girl drawings. A little young Cuban whose every movement betrays the dancer. And a fellow with a flowing tie and a portfolio looking for a job painting posters. A girl who got "three months there" before they took the show off. The victims of a hard winter look at her enviously. "And I was just learning to sing when the show closed. Had to talk my songs. Can ya beat it?" But nobody could. The heavy gent in the glidy vest and huge lodge emblem. You really don't believe they exist off stage until you see them. Broadway has a hundred of them and all in some branch of the agency racket.

And on the other side of the door; the keen-eyed producer, a bit weary of watching this endless parade. He's seen it go by for years. But until a year ago, he was in some other office. Now he has his own show. "It starts at 9 in the morning," he tells me, "and never seems to end. God, I feel sorry for those poor devils. It's been a bad show winter. And they really need work. Just think, they're trying to get into a show that, at best, won't open until next August. What the devil will they do this summer?"

"The whole theater racket hasn't been so good except for musical shows. Take my show: It cost 350,000 berries to put on. Well, it's some all winter, but it's running show now."

"Now just look at Broadway, that darn old cowpath down there that got to be the main racket. Just look at it! You can walk from 40th street clear up to 59th and what is there? Movies, movies, movies! I counted 'em a couple of weeks ago and there isn't a single theatre in that whole distance that had a legitimate show on it. Every single one movies, except a burlesque and a small vaudeville house. And I think they've got movies now. All the legit over on the side again."

And back again to the other side of the door: The little room is now jammed. They are sitting three abreast on window sills and overflow on the phone switchboard. They crowd hard against the elbows of the stenographer, who long since has lost patience.

A girl comes in. A darn pretty girl, with too much makeup and overdressed. It is easy to see she has kicked a trim in many a show. She talks with a French accent. "It's an hour's wait," the office girl tells her.

One by one they go in and one by one they come out the side door. Those inside never know when or how the others left.

And, again, on the other side of the door. The young manager is enthusiastic. "Boy, I could a made at the other night that's a knockout. The best net comedy since Ed Wynne. I'll give him $2500 a week to start. Yeh I'll raise that to get him."

And then you know why they wait for the use of travelers on the high roads of India.

Q. Is there such a plant a sth tape worm? A. O. H.

A. The tape worm plant is a plant of the rose family used medicinally for treating tape worms, hence the name.

Q. How should iced tea be served chilled before serving or with ice in the glasses? B. C. E.

A. This is largely a matter of personal taste. Some people prefer fresh tea poured over ice, while others feel that the tea blends with the lemon and sugar if prepared several hours before serving.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire owner of the Curtis Department Store selects three girls from his establishment to come into his home as his wards for one year. He believes they have worthy ambitions and he wants to give them the opportunity to fulfill them. BILLY WELLS, who is sincerely desirous of becoming a concert violinist, is the only one of the three who has a true love. He is the son of a poor family, working in the Truman automobile factory in the daytime, and writing music at night.

MRS. MEADOWS, the widow of a former governor, is hired as hostess for the Curtis mansion. Billy is the nephew of Mrs. Meadows' nephew—DAL ROMANE. With his fascinating personality, and his Oriental looks he has woven a spell about Billy. Billy returns in the Curtis limousine from the first week-end to see her mother and Clay. Clay is sickly when Billy says she cannot stay to hear a new musical composition of his.

Billy admits to her mother that she has been so busy shopping that she has done nothing about her music, but promises to see to it promptly. Billy hastens away, knowing that Dal Romaine and other guests are assembled for tea in the Curtis home and she fears to leave Dal alone with either Nyda or Winnie, so badly does she want him for herself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIII Professor Vlach Navratil was a short, round, beaming little man whose near-sighted blue eyes peered through thick lenses, rimless spectacles upon an embossed, rimless stanch little girl who believed that she could become a great violinist. Billy had heard him play two or three times, and her naive impudence and truculence bowed before him humbly.

"Play something," he told her, interrupting the story of her musical career almost rudely. "Anything!" He waved his surprisingly beautiful white hand impatiently.

She was disconcerted, frightened, but she lifted her violin to her chin and began to play the first thing that she could think of—Schubert's "Ave Maria." She played the first measure very badly, because her bow wrist trembled with fright, but as the slow, sweet beauty of the music took hold of her, she lost her fear of the great teacher, gave herself wholly up to making the lovely old violin sing and sob.

"Play something else," he ordered her gruffly. "Have you studied Tchaikovsky? Ja? Of course!" He nodded ironically at her admission.

She chose a movement from a Tchaikovsky concerto, one which called for difficult staccato bowing. Halfway through the movement she her, frowning prodigiously, that his fee was ten dollars an hour.

"Your hour's practice a day," he warned her, beaming as he bowed her out.

She telephoned her mother, dutifully, as she had promised, stopping in at a drug store off the university campus, but at her mother's first loving, eager words, Billy burst into tears.

"He thinks I can really play in three or four or five years," she sobbed. "And, oh, mother, I only have a year! What's the use?"

When she reached the Curtis mansion, it was half past twelve. There were two Fords, a small sedan, and T. Q.'s coupe, in which he drove himself to and from the store, parked in the driveway.

Wondering what had brought so many visitors to the house at luncheon time, she slipped into the hall, using the latchkey which T. Q. had presented her.

There was a babble of voices from the drawing room, and as Billy was about to ascend the stairs, her violin case in hand, Winnie darted out into the hall and hailed her excitedly.

"We've been waiting for you! The reporters and photographers are here. Billy, and they want to write us girls for the papers. Isn't it thrilling? T. Q. came home from the store to be photographed with us. Don't wait to change. Nyda and I have been snapped separately and with T. Q.—Mr. Curtis—and they want to get you alone, then all of us—Mrs. Meadows, too—for a group picture. Isn't it marvelous? They've been asking the cruelest questions!"

T. Q. abandoned the reporter who had been questioning him, and advanced upon Billy, his hands held out deprecatingly, as if asking her forgiveness.

"The newspaper boys got hold of the story somehow, and I thought it was best to give them the whole story frankly, my dear. I hope you don't mind. As a business man, whose prosperity depends, in a measure, upon advertising and the good will of the press, I can't refuse to give out news, even of a strictly private nature like this."

"I see," Billy nodded, dazed. She started to lift the little taupe-colored suede hat from her mop of chestnut curls, but a photographer sprang forward, with upraised hand.

"No, just as you are, Miss Wells. If you don't mind. In coat and hat, with your violin case in your hand. Look this way, please. Now—smile just a little."

Another photographer joined the first, fussed busily with plates and the black shroud over a big camera box on a tripod.

"There! That's fine! Head a little more to the left! Now, steady!"

Nyda sauntered up, and Billy was amazed to see her in the black lace evening gown, the great red rose swaying on her undulating hips. Then she realized that Winnie too was "dressed up," in a new turquoise blue chiffon, twinkling with rhinestones.

"I'll look queer in the group picture, dressed as I am." She opened her moleskin coat and surveyed her old brown velvet flock with dismayed blue eyes.

"Run up and slip into the darling autumn leaf dress you wore at the party," Mrs. Meadows rustled forward, majestic in black velvet evening dress. "I am sure we can wait five more minutes."

When Billy returned, the group was quickly formed. T. Q. standing proudly in his center, flanked on one side by Mrs. Meadows and Billy, on the other by Nyda and Winnie.

When several plates had been used on the group picture, three reporters bore down upon Billy, with a barrage of questions.

"How does it feel to be a Cinderella girl?" "What is your opinion of Mr. Curtis' novel philanthropy?" "What do you intend to do with your year of opportunity?"

And because T. Q. stood near, she answered as she knew he would want her to answer.

Before the photographers had folded up their tripods and their cameras,

Dal Romaine appeared, unannounced, as if he were expected by his aunt. He drew back when he became aware of the reporters and photographers, and was bowing himself hastily from the room when Mrs. Meadows summoned him to her side.

"This is my nephew, young men. Mr. Dallan Romaine, of New York and Paris." Mrs. Meadows laid a hand proudly, possessively upon the slim shoulder in a perfectly tailored morning coat.

"I'd like a picture of you and Mr. Romaine together, Mrs. Meadows, for the society page Sunday." A reporter seized the opportunity, and beckoned to a cameraman.

"No, really," Romaine protested courteously. "I never pose for pictures. You will excuse me?" He included reporters, girls and T. Q. Curtis in a hasty bow, paid honor to his aunt with a bow for her only, and retreated with what in a less graceful man, would have been ludicrous haste.

But Billy saw nothing funny in the situation. When his eyes had flashed upon her for a second as he made his bow, she saw something akin to terror in their smoldering black depths. And the smooth, rich brown of his cheeks was shaded pale when he left the room than when he had entered it.

Dal Romaine was afraid, she told herself wonderingly, but the words hardly registered in her brain. She felt numb, dazed, then the terror she had caught in his eyes struck like a needle-sharp icicle into her own heart. She, too, was afraid, afraid of herself, afraid of Romaine—afraid, afraid. She, the staunch, independent little spitfire, as T. Q. had named her, was afraid of something which she could not name, but which made her whole body cold and rigid. She wanted to run, to run and run until she could fling herself in her mother's arms, safe from all these swift currents that were bearing her away from her very self. She would tell T. Q. what Navratil had said, then run away.

(To Be Continued) Winnie takes a trick in the game in which Dal Romaine is the prize. Read the next chapter.

Advisable Funeral Service

THERE is more than merely an established routine for the mortician to perform on the occasion of a funeral.

Various requirements differently arise, to which the efficient mortician attends without being asked. The comfort of the family as well as the care of the one departed most always presents many special needs requiring experienced consideration.

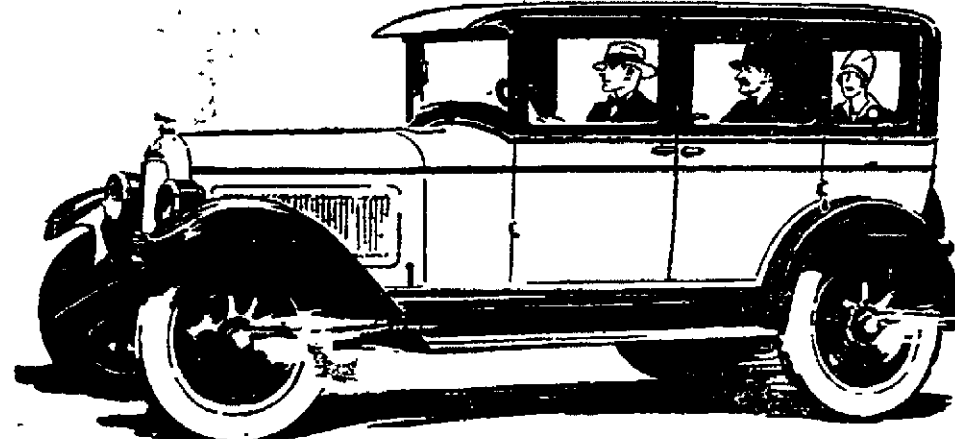

And the kind of funeral service which the foregoing suggests is what we offer, and advise.

160 Attend Banquet For H. S. Seniors

About 160 seniors and teachers of Appleton high school attended the annual senior banquet at the school gymnasium Friday night. J. Raymond Walsh, assistant principal, was toastmaster of the occasion, and H. H. Heble, principal, and William Lee, president of the class, gave talks.

Mr. Heble spoke on the important change in the lives of these seniors in four weeks after commencement. Close group ties and class consciousness have characterized the students for the past four years, but in a month each will be an individual without these ties. New associations will be made but they will not be with the same people within the groups, he said. Many will go to colleges, and although there may be several in the same college, they probably will make affiliations with different sororities, fraternities, and other organizations and friendships, he said.

The program opened with the singing of the school "Alma Mater," and then J. R. Dwyer of Lawrence college gave the invocation. William Meyer led the class yells between courses. Miss Donna Herrmann, contralto, sang "I Have a Cottage Small" of O'Hara, and a quartet composed of William Meyer, Robert Mitchell, Arthur Smith and Mark Catlin, Jr., sang "The Gypsy Trail" by Galloway and "Ferrara," an old Spanish song.

Dan Courtney's orchestra played for dancing which followed the program. The hall was decorated in spring colored effects and Japanese lantern shades for the lights.

Miss Ruth Mice was general faculty chairman and Miss Louise Marston, general student chairman of the event. Leland Delforge was in charge of the programs. Miss Dora Kelly of the decorations, Miss Catherine Spence and Miss Ethel Harrison of the dinner, Miss Ethel Cargill of the finances, Miss Edna Benson of the favors. The favors were hand painted fans made by art students of the school.

GAGE WINS THIRD PLACE IN CONTEST

One Low Rating Takes Appleton Man Out of Tie for First Place

Third place was won by Aloysius Gage, Appleton high school representative in the extempore speaking contest of the Fox River Valley district conference, at Manitowoc high school Friday afternoon.

He received the same number of first and second places as the Sheboygan speaker who was awarded first place in the contest but the seventh judge rated Gage in seventh place. This one low rating put the local man in third place in the contest.

Second place went to the Manitowoc speaker. Judging was by coaches from the eight schools in the conference, each coach voting on all but his own representative. The system of judging may be changed next year.

Mr. Gage's talk was on Naval Disarmament. Gold, silver bronze medals were given to the three winners. Schools represented in the contest were Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Marinette, Sheboygan, Manitowoc, East and West Green Bay. The contest will be held in Appleton next year. Mr. Gage and William Meyer will represent Appleton in the state scholarship extempore and oratorical contest sponsored by Lawrence college on May 10.

FOLKS GET EXCITED WHEN YOUNGSTERS FIND PART OF SKULL

Residents on N. Mason-st. believed they had stumbled on a "dark mystery" early Friday evening when the upper part of what seemed to be the skull of a human being was discovered by a group of youngsters playing in a field. The skull was covered with matted hair and was cut off just above the eye sockets. Following the discovery a large crowd of excited neighbors gathered about to get a glimpse of the gruesome object and finally someone thought to call the police.

A hurried run was made by the police who immediately took charge of the ghastly exhibit. On return to the police station a close examination of the object revealed that it was indeed the upper part of skull, covered with hair. Police were at a loss to estimate the length of time that had elapsed since the part had been severed from the head of some unlucky wax dummy.

MOOSE DISAPPOINTED
OVER SUPPORT FOR BAND

Kaukauna—Business men of the city have been slow in contributing to the band fund that is being solicited by the Kaukauna Moose band according to statements by band officials Friday. Merchants have donated only $15 to the fund. About a month ago the Moose organization in this city started out the fund with a donation of $100 expecting that the business men would fall in line and help the band meet its expenses. The band must pay the salary of its director and to date had found no way of securing funds to meet this expense except through soliciting the townspeople. It has been necessary to buy a great deal of equipment and this has practically depleted the band's treasury. Members of the band will continue their drive for funds during the next few weeks.

The band is making plans for a concert to be given some Sunday afternoon in June. It is quite probable that the band will hold several street concerts within the next few weeks.

SEYMOUR PLANS BIG
JULY 4 CELEBRATION

Special to Post-Crescent
Seymour—A big July 4 celebration under the auspices of the Seymour Fair and Driving Park association, lasting two days and two nights, will be held on the Seymour fair grounds, beginning July 3.

In preparing to make the celebration a gigantic success, the officers of the fair association and the people of Seymour adopted the "go-getter" style of action and work that "in the past has made the Seymour fair and the crowds attending it the puzzle and envy of fairs stronger financially.

By getting busy as soon as they decided to have a celebration, the officers of the fair association have booked Joe Green's Wild West Rodeo Show and Society Circus as one of the principal attractions. In a few days they may be able to announce one of the leading carnival companies as another of the principal attractions. Fire works in the evening of each day will close the program in a blaze of glory.

Joe Green's part of the program lasts 2 1/2 hours and includes harness races, relay races, relay races, chariot races, riding bucking broncos and wild galloping Texas steers and fancy riding. He will come to Seymour with 20 people and 40 horses, according to George H. Fiedler, secretary of the Seymour Fair Association.

KEEP POLITICS OUT OF CONSERVATION, GOVERNOR PROMISES

Zimmerman Invites Suggestions for Appointees on New Commission

Mr. Vernon, Wis.—(P)—“The people of Wisconsin declared emphatically that they want conservation taken out of politics. Never have I been more in earnest than when I say that I shall do everything in my power to see that this is done. If the conservation bill now before the legislature becomes a law,” said Governor Zimmerman, speaking in Mt. Horeb Saturday afternoon on the occasion of the planting of trees in honor of three past governors of the state, Governors Farwell, Washburn and Taylor.

“I am pledged to every true lover of the out-of-doors in Wisconsin to do my utmost to divorce conservation from politics,” the governor said. He added that the present bill, by Senator R. Bruce Johnson, Superior, calling as it does for a non-paid political conservation board, has at its very foundation the very thing which it should be passed, he believes has already passed it by a overwhelming majority, and the assembly can do no less, for this legislature has pledged itself to this position in the party platform upon which it was elected.

ASKS FOR ADVICE
“The bill calls for the appointment of the governor of six members of the conservation board. So that there may be absolutely no misunderstanding as to my intention when the time comes for making the appointments, I am calling upon every organization in Wisconsin which has interested itself in conservation to help me select the right men. Already the invitation has gone out to these organizations, asking them each to select the men, who, in their judgment, are best qualified to serve on such a board. At a joint meeting of all these organizations, at which a representative of each of them will be present, the names first submitted will be reduced to twenty, and from these I pledge myself to make the appointments when this bill becomes a law. I cannot legally delegate to anybody the appointments which I am required by law to make, but I can ask representative citizens to submit a list of names from which I can make the appointments. While I do not think any conservationist can or would challenge my sincerity in wishing conservation removed from politics, I want to destroy every shadow of a doubt that may be in the mind of any citizen, especially if such a doubt might prevent the final passage of this bill.”

Among the organizations invited to help the Governor in the selection of the conservation board, the Governor mentioned such outstanding organizations as the Wisconsin Fish and Game Protective Association, the Rotary Clubs of Wisconsin, the Izaak Walton League of Wisconsin, the Kiwanis Club of Wisconsin, the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs, the League of Municipalities, the Manufacturers' Association, the American Legion, the Land of Lakes Association, and the Wisconsin Resort Owners' Association.

The governor gave the life histories of the three former governors for whom the trees were planted. Louis Gettle, of the state railroad commission, spoke in dedication of the elm that is planted in honor of former governor and United States senator Robert Marion La Follette.

Governor Zimmerman told of former Governor Farwell's “unabated zeal for the public welfare,” of his furtherance of business and educational work in Madison. The “crowning glory distinguishing Governor Farwell's administration” was the passage of a law abolishing the death penalty, the present executive said. He told how Farwell was appointed to the position of chief examiner of the United States patent office, his private patent office business, the loss of it in the Chicago fire and of his stimulation of the city of Grant City.

Mo., just before his death in 1889. Former Governor Cadwallader Washburn was born in Maine in 1818 and at the age of twenty-one went westward to Mineral Point where he lived for many years, Governor Zimmerman said.

“In 1851 he was elected to Congress and served for six years. In 1861 he moved to La Crosse. He raised a Cavalry Regiment in the Civil War, became its first Colonel, and rose to the rank of Major General. In 1871 he was elected Governor of Wisconsin and served from January 1872 to January 1874.

“It is not generally known that Governor Washburn of Wisconsin was the originator in America of the patent process of milling wheat and was the founder and head of the firm of Washburn-Crosby at Minneapolis. Backed by a secret organization of farmers, “The Grangers,” Governor William R. Taylor went into office by a small majority over his opponent Washburn, the governor said. Years later he died a pauper, in the Dane county home for the aged.

SYD CHAPLIN'S OLD BILL

The characterization of Old Bill in Warner Bros. production of “The Lighter Ole,” which comes to the Appleton Theatre next week has been hailed as Syd Chaplin's masterpiece. Critics call him “Old Bill, to the life.”

Yet old Bill is in many ways the direct antithesis of Chaplin's real personality. One of the few things they have in common is a splendid instinctive sense of humor well developed, but even this differs, as Syd's is polished, subtle and lightning-quick, while Old Bill's is deliberate, pointed and naive.

Old Bill is Bruce Babin's father's universally beloved caricature of a comic type of British Tommy and his adventures in the world war. His muddly, baggy uniform is obviously built for comfort, not style. Around his neck he wears one of those famous knitted mufflers, his upper and lower lips are ambushed behind a full-blown walrus mustache from which an ancient stub of bristly pipe peeks timidly forth like a bunny from its burrow. A recalcitrant forelock strays down his forehead from beneath a lumpy cap whose vector inclines rakishly over his right ear. He is a stolid, stodgy, slow-thinking old natural, a veteran trooper in the armies of the Empire.

8yd is naturally debonair, witty and quick. His manner is open and joyous, his actions quick and decisive. He is accomplished in all arts which require deft and clever manipulation. But on the screen he is old Bill.

The picture was directed by Charles F. Reisner.

NOVEL FILM BURGLAR AVERTS MARITAL BREAK
“The Truthful Sex,” which opens an engagement of three days at the New Bijou Theatre Monday, a burglar is responsible for averting a marital tragedy, saving a baby from a life of future unhappiness and indirectly, for the return of a fortune in jewels in their rightful owner.

Of course, the burglar didn't intend to do it, but that doesn't add aught to the scheme of the plot.

Huntley Gordon and Mae Busch have the principal roles as a young married couple whose life together is nearing a tragic climax. The burglar is Ian Keith. Others in the supporting cast whose names are familiar to the picture going public are John Roche, Rosemary Theby, Joan Meredith, Leo White, Richard Travers and Billy Kent Schaeffer.

Wealth, social position and sophistication are the ingredients of the story to begin with and they accumulate swift action, drama, love interest and comedy as the picture unfolds a narrative of modern life which will be quickly recognized. Love speaks out through the servants' hall as gay guests come in through the drawing-room doors, or as the young husband goes out to his club and the wife to her social engagements. They seldom go together.

Then come the child and a burglar—and denouement for a striking climax.

Anxiously hoping for the good will of the weather man who beat them out of all but one good practice this week and out of games last Sunday, the Appleton and Kimberly teams of the Fox River Valley Baseball League are set to open the Appleton home season here Sunday with a hard-fought battle. Both teams are in good condition considering the lack of practice and, stirred by old rivalry, are sure to make things interesting unless leakage of the skies hinders the game. League magnates could have chosen no better time to open the Appleton home season than Kimberly. Two batteries which opposed each other last year will be depended upon by the rival managers. Vanderloop, who weeks ago had Green Bay's heavy sluggers tamed and really beaten except for bad errors by his infielders will top the mound for the Appleton home team. Behind him, Sternagle will toil for Appleton and when the veteran is going good he is hard to beat. Brockhouse care for his shoats.

The Kimberly lineup with two exceptions is the same which played most of last year though the Lamers boys quit before the season was over to play with combined Locos. Charley Schell is at his old first base job, with Marty at second, Boots at short and Butch Thiem at his old third base job. Hansen again is utility infielder. In the outfield Coles is the only man from last year as the others are playing with the Kimberly Intercity league team. However, Pope, former Weyauwega star, and Roehrich, who played in the Minnesota state league last year, take care of one garden and Les Smith the other. Les was the star batter and outfielder of the Ottumwa, Mississippi Valley loop champs last year. "Shiner" Thiem is used in utility roles and as a pinch hitter.

Appleton still is bothered by the absence of Hillman and Bent, regular outfielders, and Ashman, classy catcher, but puts a strong team in the loop especially if Shields is at second base. Radtke, Tornow and Gosha are at their regular jobs, first short and second, unless Al is shifted to third another of his positions. He will be shifted if Shields is on second otherwise, last probably will try third. In the outfield Priebe, a veteran, holds down center with Bowers, a speedy rookie, in left. Baetz, Mayefsky and Laesch, a new man from New London will try right field.

LAZARRI MISSES 1ST CHANCE IN 124 TRIES

After accepting 123 chances without an error, Tony Lazarrini, first baseman of the Appleton team, missed a chance when the Yankees visited Chicago recently. Lazarrini's error came on one of the easiest hit balls of the game.

Dutch Reuther Expected To Come Back With Yanks

BY BILLY EVANS

A star southpaw is a necessary asset to every major league club that has pennant hopes. It is baseball precedent that right-handed pitching alone will not win championships. There must be a clever left-hander on the staff to vary the style.

Last year, the New York Yankees had a star southpaw in Herb Pennock. He won 30 games for the American League champions and was generally considered the best pitcher in the league.

The Yanks still have Pennock, in addition, Huggins also has a promising young southpaw in the name of "Dutch" Reuther, who joined the club last fall and turned in some creditable performances.

It is just possible that the veteran "Dutch" Reuther of 1927 may prove a most important cog in the chances of the Yankee machine to repeat American League champion.

Reuther is a right-handed pitcher, but "Dutch" Reuther, formerly with the Chicago Cubs, also raised his mark to .400 this week, from a mere .303 a

BADGER BALLERS IN HARD BATTLES

Strong Northwestern, Illinois Teams Next Foes of Card Ball Nine

Madison—Wisconsin's hopes for an elevated rating in the Western Conference diamond race is expected to hinge on the outcome of two crucial battles here, one against Northwestern Saturday and the other against Illinois Monday.

When the Purple took the field Saturday she represented one of the most powerful ball outfits in the Big Ten Championships. Here this month will be between two captains, Burg of Chicago and McGinnis of Wisconsin. However, with eight other men entered who have reached a height of six feet or better, the two leaders may not entirely ignore the field.

This year's meet will see the passing of the greatest pair of high jumpers the Conference has seen recently. Burg and McGinnis have met many times in their favorite event, and the score will be settled once and for all on May 28. The Maroon leader holds an advantage over McGinnis, who put the Purple in the running high jump, will take a goodly slice of the points if he performs true to form. He won a third in the 1927 indoor and placed at the outdoor championships at Iowa last spring. His best effort is 6 feet, 1 inch. Thomas, Iowa, was also a point winner in both meets mentioned above. He is consistently good for 6 feet and better, while his teammate, Mann, is nearly his equal.

Wachowski, Illinois' sophomore jumper, has shown well in dual meet, and together with Meislahan, will represent the Orange and Blue. Nelson of Purdue is a good man in the high jump, and will bear watching. Others of note are Ottensmeyer, Minnesota; Cody, Chicago; Lane, Michigan; Monson, Wisconsin; Lee, Ohio; and Lewis, Northwestern.

The Badger Captain set a new Conference record in the indoor competition in March at 6 feet 5 inches and, also tied for first in the Kansas Relays at Lawrence last month. McGinnis took a third year ago in the outdoor classic. Wisconsin also boasts a 6 foot 2 inch man in the lanky Buenechner, a newcomer.

Rettig, Northwestern's entry in the running high jump, will take a goodly

slice of the points if he performs true to form. He won a third in the 1927 indoor and placed at the outdoor championships at Iowa last spring. His best effort is 6 feet, 1 inch. NEXT WEEK'S GAMES
Tuesday—Badger Printers vs Bankers.
Wednesday—Brandt Co. vs Legion.
Thursday—Interlake vs Co. D.
Friday—Post-Crescent vs Civic Club.

After playing three innings in a driving rain, what looked like a close, hard game between the Post-Crescent and Co. D softball teams of the City Twilight League was called off Friday afternoon at Jones park. The P-C men led 3-2 but the teams were evenly-matched and a close game was in prospect. The teams are tied for first place in the loop.

The Guardians scored two runs in the first frame on hits and errors, but were held scoreless after that when the P-C men settled down. The P-C men failed to score in the first two frames, though poor baserunning spoiled chances in the first. In the third frame the Guardians scored three runs and with two men on bases and one down the umpire decided that the players had been "soaked" enough. Klein and Zuhlske formed the Co. D battery with Wagner and Bente working for the P-C team. Co. D was given their protested game with the Bankers at a meeting of the league officials Thursday evening.

Practically every game on the card for next week is expected to be a battle. Two evenly matched teams met in a tossup game Tuesday when the Badger Printers battled the Bankers. The latter squad is strong and the former also appears strong, but it is a new team and has not been tried in a game as yet, winning its opener by a forfeit.

Tuesday the Legion is a favorite over the new Bankers team and Wednesday two evenly matched squads battle again, with the Interlakes giving a slight edge by last year's experience and ability to slug fast hurling, such as Kline uses. The teams are tied for the top, machine it a first place battle. Friday the Post-Crescents and Civic Club teams clash in what should be the best game of the week. The Civics, with the pick of last year's Lark Loop, almost beat the Bankers with six men Thursday, holding an 8-5 tie in the eighth. A full team built around such men as Connelly, Jensen, Kahn, Sylvester, Wheeler, Carlson and the like will make any crew in the loop step to win.

CARDINALS WHIP GIANTS BY 11-1

Champion's Sluggers Hit on All Nine as Sherdell Tames Mac's Batsmen

Eight big league teams moved to new scenes Saturday after winding up four-day stands with varying degrees of success. There was only one victory for the Cardinals among the world champion Cardinals as they moved from New York to Philadelphia for they recalled a resounding 11 to 1 whipping they administered to the league leading Giants Friday.

The Cards piled up seven runs in the first inning and increased the lead thereafter with New Willie Sherdell pitching masterful ball.

Al Tyson, New York outfielder, made four of the Giants seven hits. Hafey of St. Louis made a homer, double and single.

The American League produced a game with a score almost as lopsided as the victory of the Athletics over the Tigers at Detroit, 10-3. Carl Mays held the Robins in subjection until the eighth when they shelled him off the mound to score five runs and take the decision from the Reds, 5 to 4. The Boston Red Sox resumed a determined effort to climb up among the contenders as they faced out 7 to 0 shutout against the Indians.

The St. Louis Browns lost to the Tanks, 3 to 1.

Defeat of the Cubs by the Phillies 4 to 1, in the only other game played sent them down a peg in the standings while the Cubs went into a tie with the Pirates for third.

Leading hitters of the National League in more than 10 games are: Hornsby, New York, .447; Faneuil, New York, .388; Hughson, Boston, .387; Williams, Philadelphia, .368; Sand, Philadelphia, .366; Harper, New York, .364; P. Wanner, Pittsburgh, .357; Lindstrom, New York, .354; Bressler, Cincinnati, .350; Spaulding, Philadelphia, .347.

A lot of old timers in the American Association set out on the trail of "Bevo" Lebourveau, Toledo's batting star, this week, and Red Russell, the former White Sox fly chaser, pushed his percentage up to .400. Lebourveau is still easily in front with .417, some 25 points better than the mark of last week.

Denver Grigsby, formerly with the Chicago Cubs, also raised his mark to .400 this week, from a mere .303 a

Eight Of Ten Leaders In American Bat Race Still Slug Over .400

Hornsby Only .400 Man in National; Brewers Marks Fall With Slump

Chicago—(AP)—Eight of the ten leading hitters among the regulars of the American league are still slugging above the .400 mark, with the season four weeks old, and Bob Fothergill of Detroit is still in the front with a mark of .419, in averages compiled Saturday including last Wednesday's games.

Several pitchers and pinch hitters, notable Shaute and Uhle of Cleveland, are hitting above the Detroit star's mark, in the few games they have played. Urban Shocker of the New York Yankees is another .400 hitter, probably holding on to a seat among the elite until the end of the season come up and occupy his customary place in the first ten. Now he is down in the 322 class, though he is again in the lead with 8 home runs.

The Yankees, leaders in team batting in the league, dropped from .335 a week ago to .326 this week, but still lead the league in slugging. The Athletics passed the Athletics to take second place with .302, the only other .300 hitting team in the circuit. Hellmuth, Blues and Warner of the Tigers led the slugging drive.

Alphonse Thomas of the Chicago White Sox is still the best pitcher to achieve five victories, but his one defeat brings his percentage below the trio who have perfect records to date with three victories apiece. They are Huddlin, Cleveland, Rip Collins of Detroit and Herb Pennock of the Yankees.

Leading hitters in the American league are: Fothergill, Detroit, .419; McCurdy, Chicago, .414; Goslin, Washington, .413; Cobb, Philadelphia, .410; Gehrig, New York, .409; Eichrodt, Cleveland, .406; Clancy, Chicago, .404; Galloway, Philadelphia, .400; Schanz, St. Louis, .398; Meusel, New York, .381.

The National League has but one .400 hitter among the regulars and he is the many-time batting king, Rogers Hornsby, with a mark of .417 in averages compiled Saturday, including Wednesday's games. Rogers has as many home runs as anybody else in the league, too, his total of six equaling that of Hank Wilson, and Earl Webb of the Chicago Cubs.

Hornsby drove out three this week. Frankie Frisch, who was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Hornsby, dropped out of the first fight this week, sliding to a mark of .341. With he did not in the sack, however, he stole bases regularly, getting four this week. Outier of Pittsburgh is the base stealing leader with seven.

The Giants are leading not only in hitting, but are in a tie with Pittsburgh for leading in slugging. Leading slugging league with 30 victims, but his mark is still six below Lefty Grove of the Athletics.

High of Boston and Bressler of the Cincinnati Reds are the newcomers in the select batting group this week, leading with 30 victims, but his mark is still six below Lefty Grove of the Athletics.

Daddy Vance of Brooklyn is starting another streak of slugging, leading his league with 30 victims, but his mark is still six below Lefty Grove of the Athletics.

SUMMER TREMORS ARE FEARED BY ENGLISHMAN

London.—(AP)—Lord Wavertree predicts a summer of bad earthquakes, hurricanes and tempests.

So firm is his conviction that he has refused to have his yacht, the Vonna, put into commission. Lord Wavertree puts much faith in the horoscope, and his horoscope foretells such a bad summer that he has decided to forego ocean travel.

The serious earthquake in Jugoslavia which involved Sarajevo and extended to various parts of the Mediterranean supported Lord Wavertree's pessimistic forecast and influenced many of his yachting friends to forego outings to the Mediterranean in small boats.

Lord Wavertree is one of the keenest of sportsmen among the British peers. He has won the Derby for King Edward VII, won the Grand National with Soarer and won the National Hunt Steeplechase with Glen Royal.

BRUSH FURNITURE TWICE MONTHLY, DEALER ADVISES

This Procedure Will Keep Furnishings Clean and Eliminate Moths

The first and most important rule to follow in caring for upholstered furniture is to brush all parts thoroughly at least twice a month and to use a vacuum cleaner once a week, according to R. L. Feuerstein, manager of the Feuerstein Upholstery shop, 1509 N. Richmond-St. This procedure will keep furniture clean and free from dust and it will practically eliminate any danger from moths.

There are three species of cloth moths that attack articles made of wool, fur, hair and feathers. They are very much alike and pass through the usual cycle of insects. The adult or parent moth is the first stage, the egg follows from which emerges the larva or worm. This larva becomes a caterpillar from which results the adult of the following generation.

The adult moth is the common miller which flies about the house. Moths abide in summer and spring although they can be seen even in heated houses. The adult moths do not do any damage but the larva which is produced from the eggs laid by the adult start feeding on the cloth as soon as they are hatched. Each lives about three weeks and lays about 200 eggs.

To protect furniture at the Feuerstein shop rejuvenation is taken apart and cleaned. Defective parts are replaced, and when an old piece of furniture emerges from the process it is like new.

A full line of covering samples is kept in stock, and samples are brought to the home so that a selection can be made. New coverings include tapestries, mohairs, velours, damasks and cretonnes.

Furniture polishes, oils or varnishes should not be used on upholstery leather because they cause it to lose its lustre and become sticky, according to Mrs. Feuerstein. A damp cloth with a little castile soap is sufficient to clean leather, which then should be rinsed with another cloth and finally dried. When slip covers are used they should be removed occasionally and cleaned beneath because moths will lay eggs there.

STEEL SETS HIGH

Ingot Production Soars to 4,129,952 Gross Tons, Pinacle for Month

Cleveland, O.—Iron Trade Review says: Steel ingot production in April was unable to subdue the tradition of a decline beginning with the second quarter and fell off 5 per cent from March, but it did soar to a new pinnacle for April. The month's total of 4,129,952 gross tons compares with 4,531,952 tons in March, the all-time high, and 4,105,799 tons last April.

Statistics of production for steel, as for pig iron, reveal a robustness that is belatedly by hand-to-mouth buying. In each month since January more steel has been made than in the comparable month of last year, which was the year one-third zone, cumulative production of steel at 16,262,161 tons is only 1 1/2 per cent under the similar period of 1926.

Heavy finished steel has shown further shrinkage in both new business and production the past week, but no more so than is to be expected for the season. In the absence of normal demand from major consumers, such as freight car and automobile manufacturers, the volume of steel being absorbed by the general run of industry appears the greater. Business is better than the steel industry has had in April in 1927. The price situation in the heavy finished steel lines still tends toward easiness. Steelworks operations this week average 82 per cent a loss of two points.

The iron continues dull and weak. Both bessemer and basic iron are off 50 cents in the Mahoning valley, to $19 and $18, respectively.

Practically all makers of cold rolled strip steel are now quoting the new quantity differentials, which have the effect of imposing an extra on small purchases. With the leading independent maker of sheets at Chicago in line, the sheet industry is now solidly behind the new levels of 2.25, Pittsburgh for blue annealed, 3.00 for black, 2.50 for galvanized and 4.50 for bright finished. A few sales have been made in the steel market since most consumers covered their second quarter needs before the advance. Real steel is postponed until third quarter requirements come out, in about a month.

April car awards, totaling 2,550, were the lightest for any month since October and brought the total for the opening four months of the year to 25,225 compared with 35,325 in the corresponding period of last year.

Declines in pig iron prices have been more than neutralized by advances in sheet and coil, the iron trade Review composite of fourteen leading iron and steel producers this week stands at $28.55 compared with $26.52 last week.

No General Advance Seen By Babson In Stock Market

Babson Park, Mass.—Roger W. Babson has just returned to his northern headquarters, and his first comment was concerning the stock market.

He has been very active during his winter in the south. Mr. Babson's statement is as follows:

ADVANCE NOT GENERAL

"The impression seems to be that the stock market has had a great advance the past winter. It is true that certain stocks, like United States Steel and General Motors have had speculative advances, but studies show that the general market has not advanced much. Last September the average of the twenty leading industrial stocks stood at 160 while today they are at about 162. While certain stocks have gone up considerably, other stocks have gone down. It is, however, true that the market shows some increase over a year ago and the transactions have been very heavy.

"A market with heavy transactions, a few spectacular leaders, but with no general advance, is usually the sign of a distributing market. If so, the market will have to make the past winter. When operating such a campaign, the custom is to build a few spectacular leaders as a smoke screen while they sell the general market. Newspapers tend to feature these leaders and the public thinks that all other stocks will go up just the same and hence buy while the inside sell.

CHEAP MONEY HOLDING UP MARKET

"In a few instances increased earnings are justifying higher prices for stocks. This especially is true in connection with certain of the rails. Stocks usually sell, however, on the basis of earnings rather than on account of earnings which have gone over the dam.

The general impression is that the outlook for steel and motor earnings is less attractive than it has been for some time. Construction work in many lines is falling off, which tends to decrease steel earnings temporarily. While the outlook for motor car prices must eventually affect the profits of the Motor Car companies. The real reason for the high priced stock market is cheap money in abundance. Cheap money works in two ways. First, it enables speculators to borrow money at a rate less than the interest paid on the securities purchased. Second, it enables speculators to borrow money at a rate less than the interest paid on the securities purchased. Second, it enables speculators to borrow money at a rate less than the interest paid on the securities purchased.

Cheap and abundant money has caused money to be so plentiful as these have been very easy to finance. It is even said that many of the leading bankers of New York are personally interested in these pools and hence have had an abundant supply of credit. How long present credit conditions can continue, nobody knows; but any severe slump in credit conditions would seriously affect the stock market. Keen investors refuse to get too bullish on rails because of the labor situation. The recent wage advances given to the railroad men show that labor can skin the cream about as fast as it rises. If labor would be willing to reduce wages when earnings decline, such increases at present would be in order, but reducing wages is almost impossible.

WATCH FOREIGN COUNTRIES

"The most serious factor of the situation other than decreasing earnings which forebadow dividend cuts, is the unsettled attitude abroad. Although Europe is greatly improved, yet the financial situation continues very bad. Any explosion in Europe would have a very bad effect on the stock market here.

This would not only be true sentimentally but it should be remembered that European investors are sending a large amount of funds to this country for investment. A serious conflict abroad would make it necessary for many of these funds to be withdrawn, which in turn would mean the sale of securities. The present stock market is all right so long as there are few offerings as large as a large amount of offerings are the down on the market, it is very doubtful if the market would hold out.

"Thus far nothing has developed in China to cause serious alarm in the United States and Canada. Conditions, however, are very bad in China and have been getting bad constantly for some years. Furthermore, if history repeats itself, conditions will be worse before they are better and it will be many years before they again become settled. China is entering on the same program that Mexico has been passing through and it will even take longer for China to recover than that has taken Mexico. Although China is fighting one another for supremacy in China, yet it should be remembered that the leader of each of these groups is a radical. When the stock market on the American continent is booming, we are apt to forget the troubles of others. Some day, however, investors will wake up and notice the great radical governments and movements developing in Russia on the European continent, in China and India on the continent of Asia; in Egypt on the African continent, and in Mexico and Central America in our own continent. Although I am a great optimist on America and believe that even these movements will work out in the end for the benefit of the entire world, yet some time during the process investors are sure to get a very severe fright, which will be accompanied by drastic stock market declines.

INVEST MONEY WISELY

"As a rule, it is a mistake to buy stocks for speculation when business throughout the country is exceptionally good. It is usually risky to buy stocks for speculation when the stock market is at its present height, namely 8 per cent above normal of course, these who are willing to buy securities with established records and in the dividend with no thought as to price fluctuations, may buy at this time. I also believe that good bonds are still attractive purchases. I do, however, believe that it is risky now to buy stocks for speculation, especially on borrowed money. Moreover, now is the time when the wise investor will certainly sell enough securities to pay up his debts.

"During depression, local securities decline least and listed New York securities decline most. During a boom, local securities go up least and New York listed securities go up most. In view of this condition, now is a very good time to invest one's money locally. In every city there are public utility stocks, manufacturing stocks, and other forms of securities are always available. Now is a good time to take mortgages. When taking local mortgages, you can see the property yourself and know what it is worth and know the condition of the buyer. During a panic, when the New York Stock Exchange prices are very low, I would not advise local investments, as one can then do much better on the New York Stock Exchange; but today, New York prices are so very high, local investments look to me more attractive. Those who do not want to risk their funds in any local investment, can at least put their money in the savings department of a good local bank and get a 4 per cent interest, or else buy municipal county bonds."

CORTOT MAY MARK NEW ERA IN HOME HEATING METHODS

Recent Invention Is Refined and Artistically Built Radiator

One of the most recent inventions in home heating appliances which probably will mark a new era in home heating is an improved radiator known as the Cortot. It is a refined and artistically built radiator with tubes that are thinner than those of the ordinary radiator. One of the newest models is on display at the Wenzel Brothers Inc., plumbing and heating shop, 406 W. College-ave.

The radiator was designed and built by a French artist engineer, Louis Cortot, who worked on the improvement for several years. The new radiators may be had in various colors and designs.

Another recent improvement is the new metal jacket for enclosing boilers. The jackets are built of steel plates insulated with asbestos. They replace the old asbestos coverings which are not as efficient as the newer metal jacket. The improvement prevents the risk of not applying a sufficient thick coating of ordinary cement asbestos.

The season of the year when the majority of furnaces are installed is rapidly approaching and home owners who plan to install furnaces during the summer are advised to make an early choice to insure early installations. The Wenzel Brothers handle steam, hot water and vapor heating systems and the Quiet May Oil burner.

The Quiet May Oil Burner can be made an active part of almost any household in less than one day. A small and quickly accomplished job of excavating is done to place the fuel storage tank in the ground. Fine lines run from the tank to the burner in front of the furnace or heater. Grates, ash doors and dampers are removed from the furnace and a protective wall of firebrick is easily constructed in the combustion chamber.

An approved device is placed in the furnace to check the flow of oil if combustion should cease. A thermostat, which automatically controls the temperature throughout the house, is installed and the motor on the heater is connected to the hose wiring system.

PARROT LAMPS LONDON FAD

MILKY WAY POPULATION IS RAISED BY BILLIONS

New Haven, Conn.—(AP)—If the sun were a tennis ball lying on a court in New Orleans, the earth would be relatively a grain of sand 23 feet away and the nearest star would be another tennis ball near Duluth, Minn., 1,100 miles distant.

This picture is drawn by Henshaw Ward, scientific officer, in a volume, "Exploring the Universe," published today, in which he recounts the progress of science since 1920.

Astronomers as lately as 1922 estimated that the Milky Way might contain three or four billion stars, he writes. But in June of 1925, Abbott of the Smithsonian Institution said the telescope fixed the figure at least at 20 or 40 billion, and two months later Luten of Harvard said the number might run to a trillion.

Only two years ago, Ward relates, science established existence of thousands of star clusters in the universe like the Milky Way.

The bamboo holds the record for speedy growth among trees, new shoots rising at the rate of nine inches in each 24 hours during the rainy season.

New London—The regular meeting of the Woman's auxiliary unit to Norris Spencer legion post No. 263 was held at legion hall Thursday evening with Mrs. F. A. Knoll of Marshfield, committee woman of the Eighth district, guest of honor.

Further plans were discussed for the 1927 poppy drive which has been set for May 28 and a committee composed of Mesdames Mary Schaller, Anne Meyers and Irene Eggers was appointed to meet with a committee from the legion in regard to the program for the day. Work will be placed on the largest of world war veterans only, this year instead of the veterans of all wars, as heretofore. Graves of veterans from previous wars will be taken care of by the Woman's Relief corps.

A citation was received by the organization from national headquarters having gone over the top by Jan. 1 in the national membership drive conducted at the close of 1926. As the result of the recent membership drive twenty new members were taken into the unit, making the total membership 126.

A joint donation of the local Legion post and auxiliary unit will be made for the flood relief, the amount to be announced later.

According to Mrs. Knoll, the local unit is very much to the front in auxiliary work in the Eighth district, and has the largest membership.

The American legion accepted the flower as its Memorial Flower at the National Convention of the American legion held in Cleveland, Sept. 27-29, 1926 according to the National Poppy chairman, Adelin Wright Macaulay, the idea of wearing the poppy as the National Memorial flower was established by Miss Moina Michael of Athens, a member of the Y. M. C. A. Overseas staff of the suggestion coming to her from an illustrated copy of Col. John McCrae's poem "We Shall Not Sleep" contained in an issue of The Ladies Home Journal.

The first street sale of poppies in a large city was held in Milwaukee June, 1919 for the purpose of raising money for the home-coming of the thirty-thousand soldiers who are in the hospital of Milwaukee sold the poppies to raise money for service work just before Memorial day, 1920, before the flower had been adopted as the National Memorial flower.

HUMOR AND SADNESS IS MIXED IN 3-ACT COMEDY

A mixture of humor and sadness is the feature of the 3-act comedy drama, "Days of Love," which will be presented Wednesday and Thursday evening at St. Paul schoolhouse by members of the St. Paul Lutheran Church Young People Society. The play is not as its name indicates, a "mushy" love story, members of the cast said.

It deals with the love of an old man, wrongfully sentenced to many years in prison for a daughter whom he has never seen. He finds her before the play ends.

Numerous parts are played by Carl Voeks, as the old negro mammy, Lucille Nehls as Lora and Oscar Forbeck as Clark. Ruben Schultz as Judge Barry and Walter Voeks as Trusty Jim, play the sad parts.

COMBINED LOCKS GIVES SEWER WORK TO WILSON COMPANY

Village Board Accepts Bid of $13,212; Eight Bids Are Submitted

The R. J. Wilson Construction company of Appleton was awarded a contract to construct sewers in the west half of Combined Locks at a special meeting of the village board Thursday evening. The local company's bid was $13,212.32. Seven other contractors from Watertown, Gillette, Fond du Lac, Cudahy and Rockwood, Ill., submitted estimates. The highest bid was $25,583.50.

Spokane by the state board of health to dump sewage into the Fox river for two years. During that time, the board pointed out, the proposed plan for a joint sewage disposal district composed of all municipalities in the Fox river valley could be fully developed. The board pointed out that the plan was not successful all cities would be ordered to stop dumping sewage into the river and find other means of disposal.

About a year ago Combined Locks made application to the board of health to dump sewage into the Fox river and the board refused the permit. C. M. Baker, state sanitary engineer, indicated that all cities dumping sewage into the Fox river would be asked to find other means of disposing of the waste because of the polluted condition of the river. He suggested the joint system.

A conference of representatives from Neenah to Kaukauna was called and the plan discussed. A committee composed of the engineers of each of the interested municipalities was appointed to make a preliminary survey, and it was estimated that the improvement would cost in the neighborhood of $1,500,000.

The plans include a main line from Neenah to Kaukauna where a large disposal plant would be erected. Each of the cities along the river could connect with the main line and the sewage would be carried to Kaukauna for disposal. The line would take advantage of a drop of 150 feet in the course of the river between the two points.

The engineer's special committee has never made a final report on its findings. Mayor A. C. Rule is to call a meeting of representatives of each city to receive the report soon.

Work on the sewer system will be started by the local company within two or three weeks. One excavating machine and a larger crew of men will be engaged in the work, which probably will be completed within two or three months.

RADIO BOARD SETS LIMITED LICENSES TO STUDY STATIONS

Plan Will Give Commission Chance to Work Out Its Problem Gradually

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—The public hearings before the new federal radio commission developed almost every conceivable suggestion except the one which the commission has adopted.

The radio experts and other volunteers conferred valuable advice, but it remained for the commission to conceive and decide upon a plan of maximum efficiency and minimum stupidity.

Thus the short-term license plan is going into effect. It will give the commission a chance to work out its big problem gradually and to weed out the undesirable nuisances among broadcasting stations cautiously and with all the evidence at hand. It will give every station a chance to prove its worth.

It is said unofficially that the dynamo in this commission is Commissioner H. A. Bellows, a gentleman who has made a success of many things, and who thinks and talks very rapidly for the rather slowly moving city of Washington.

EASY ON WAVE-JUMPERS

"We are not," says Bellows in explaining the commission's program, "going to say that the wave-jumpers are barred. Some of them are among the best stations we have from the standpoint of public service. Most of them are not, as everybody knows.

"There is for them, however, no established priority right to any wave length. This fact will be counted as part of the record of these stations, but if their past record shows valuable service we are going to try to take care of them.

The essential feature of our new program is that there will be no public hearings until the short-term broadcasting licenses have been issued. We are not going to have everyone come here and tell us what he wants. We are going to tell him what he gets.

CHANCE TO BE HEARD

"Later, after three or four weeks, we will have hearings for the dissatisfied stations. A broadcaster will have to apply for such a hearing and state just what he wants.

"Then comes the clash of conflicting interests and the committee will sit as a judge and the sessions will be just like court proceedings where everyone can come and present his case.

"If there are any casualties when the short-term licenses are issued it will hardly be the commission's fault. We are ready to put up with quite a lot of stupidity, but if a station doesn't know enough to apply for a wave length other than the one we have refused him we can't give him much sympathy.

"On the other hand, we have a great deal of sympathy for those who are looking for a place to go."

Horse Ballet Features Christy Bros. Big Show

A horse ballet is one of the new presentations with Christy Bros. big five ring trained wild animal show. Three squadrons of high-stepping horses are gracefully put through intricate figures of dance with rhythmic action without the assistance of riders. No stage favorite could compare a keener regard for time and pleasure effect than these equine dancers. The animals are beautiful specimens of aristocratic breeding, amazingly educated, and go through picturesque movements with a daintiness and precision of step that is thrillingly enjoyable. This feature in its varying entirety is one of the most fascinating equine offerings ever presented under a tent.

Then the new jumping horses are quite a new addition. A trio of highly bred, blueblooded equines have been taught to make high jumps over obstacles that are really amazing. These steeds are champions in their class and the feats of leaping over the hurdles and other interferences is really astonishing to those who have seen feeble attempts to perform similar feats.

Forty high-school horses are also brought forward and they demonstrate in no mean manner how the equine is quite a factor in dancing and fancy stepping. They do all kinds of new stunts and one of the members of the troupe does a one step that is a revelation in horse training.

The equine features will be presented by Christy Bros. when they appear in Appleton on Thursday, May 19.
